

Lab Overview

Objective

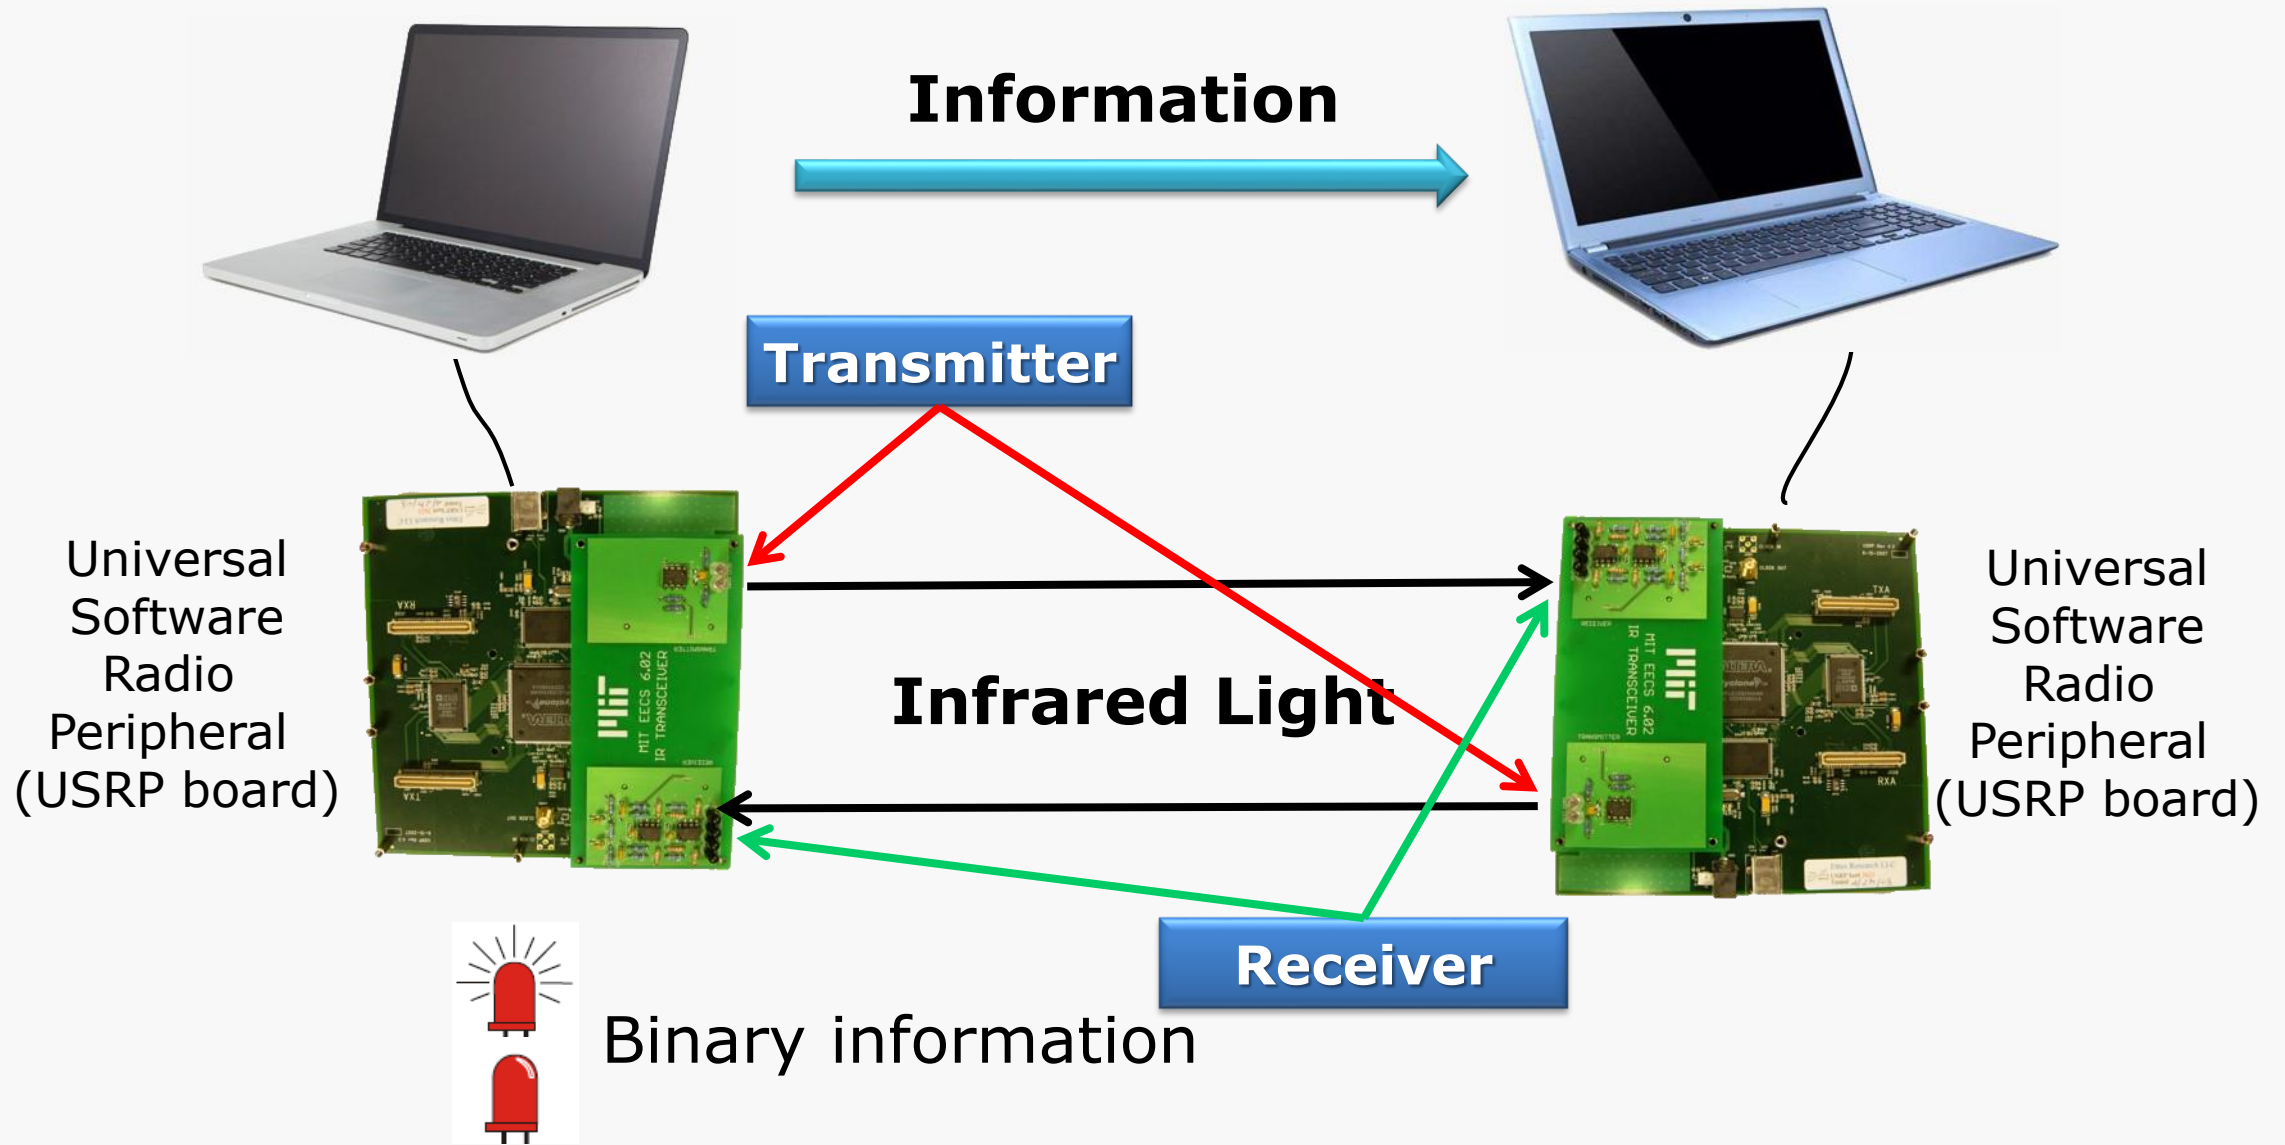

The objective of the lab session is to help students understand the key concepts of communication theory through building a real communication system.

Components of a Communication System

Lab Equipment

Through experiments, we shall

- Understand the effects of the channel on a communication system
- Design communication protocols/techniques to handle those issues caused by the channel
- Evaluate the performance of the communication system